A Word About Binder Twine

We have received our car of STANDARD BINDEK TWINE

This year the Farm Journals and Magazines have devoted quite a great deal of space in advising farmers to use Manila Binder Twine instead of Standard, stating that the manufacturers of Standard Twine did not have the material to make first class Standard Twine on account of scarcity of the raw material, therefore necessitating the taking of the best fibre to make rope and using the refuse for the Standard Twine, which of course makes an inferior grade of Twine.

The STANDARD Twine we have, manufactured by the International Harvesting Company, is made all of long fibre, and is positively first quality.

We have also a smaller quantity of cheap twine made of short fibre, for those of our customers who prefer to buy a cheaper Twine.

Our STANDARD Twine however, will cost you but 50c. per hundred more than the short fibre Twine, which amount is more than made up in time and labor saved over using the inferior quality.

One carload of Binders and Mowers has just reached us and another will arrive next week. If you have not already placed your order with us for your Farm Machinery there is still time to do so.

TELEPHONES ON PRIVATE TRAIN

Merchants' and Manufacturers of Philadelphia will have Telephone Connections with their Train while Stopping here.

One of the interesting features of the special train chartered for the second annual excursion of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Trade Expansion is that it will be equipped with a railway telephonic service so that members of the party may communicate with their places of business.

The excursion will arrive here on June 16 on a three days' trip through southern Pennsylvania, Maryland and northern Virginia for the purpose of visiting Philadelphia and Philadelphia's trade.

This combination of Philadelphia business men has chartered a special train of sleepers and dining cars, and stops will be made at fifteen cities and towns enroute.

The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania installed a telephone in each of the three sleeping cars, and as soon as the train comes to a standstill, the local construction men of the Company will almost instantly connect these telephones with lines to the central office.

Members can then call up Philadelphia or any town on the itinerary, in fact any city or town in the United States and Canada within talking distance of this section of the country.

The members may be called at the various stops, not only from their offices and homes, but from long distance points, such as New York, Boston, Pittsburgh and Baltimore.

Mr. W. Worthington, Jr., Special Agent of the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania, will accompany the trip and supervise the workings of this admirable traveling telephone service, which will be presented to the participating members of the Association with the compliments of the Bell System.

This enterprise of the Telephone Company will enable the excursionists to keep in close touch with the affairs of their offices and homes, and will again illustrate the great convenience of the telephone.

PROF. PECK BREAKS SILENCE

Intends to Get Satisfaction Before Breach of Promise Suit Ends.

New York, June 10.—Declaring he intends to get satisfaction before he is through with the case, Professor Harry Thurston Peck, chief Latin instructor at Columbia university and author and literary critic, broke his silence in regard to the $50,000 suit for alleged breach of promise brought against him by Miss Esther Quinn, of Cambridge, Mass.

Miss Quinn says Professor Peck asked her to marry him about the time his first wife divorced him in 1908, and that she suffered a severe shock to learn some months later of his marriage to a schoolteacher. Professor Peck is about fifty-four.

When Professor Peck was seen in his office at Columbia university he held in his hand a volume of his poems, "Greystone and Porphyry."

At first Professor Peck said that he did not intend to discuss the matter of Miss Quinn's suit at all. It was his intention, he said, to give the newspapers a little lesson in journalism.

BANKER'S DEATH STARTS CONTEST

Declare C. C. Dickinson's End Was Not Accidental.

New York, June 10.—Charles Coulter Dickinson, former president of the Carnegie Trust company, and one of the best known men in local finance prior to his death after a mysterious trip to a chemical laboratory at Scranton, Pa., did not come to his death by accident, according to a signed statement issued by E. W. De Leon, president of the Casualty Company of America.

The statement followed an autopsy that was made by physicians, and an analysis of portions of the body, both of which proceedings were conducted at the urgent request of the Casualty company, which held $55,000 of insurance upon the banker's life, which insurance it had reinsured partially with three other companies. At the time of his death Mr. Dickinson's family emphatically denied rumors of suicide.

No reason was given for keeping the fact of his death secret, and the delay in getting the matter to the public aroused much question. Then it was stated that Mr. Dickinson's death was due to the accidental inhalation of cyanogen gas while watching an experiment in the laboratory of Dr. Lange, a chemist of Scranton, Pa., who claims to have discovered the Rosicrucian secret of transmutation by which he can take baser metals and raise them to equality with silver.

It developed upon investigation that the accident reported by the friends of Mr. Dickinson took place nearly a week before his death.

FOUND DIAMOND RING IN CODFISH

Gets $50 Prize With His 45-Cent Dinner.

Boston, June 10.—Stanley T. Kedder, while cleaning a codfish which he had bought from a fish dealer, found in the fish a diamond ring that he estimates to be worth $50.

Kedder declares the ring must have been inside the fish for two or three years, because it had turned partly black. The original color of pure 14 karat gold, however, was restored when he used polish. The ring had engraved on the inside "K. D. O. 1904." Mr. Kedder paid 45 cents for the codfish and considers he got a good bargain.

PRINCETON TAKES PROCTOR GIFT

Dispute Over Graduate College Site Settled.

WILL RECEIVE $1,500,000

Western Man's Offer of $500,000, Once Withdrawn, Was Renewed With Satisfactory Conditions—Mrs. Sage Gives $150,000.

Princeton, N. J., June 10.—As a result of a special meeting of the board of trustees of Princeton university the institution will acquire about $1,500,000 in gifts. The bulk of this comes as a renewal of the offer made by William Cooper Proctor, of Cincinnati, and brings to an end the controversy over the site of the graduate college.

Mr. Proctor in May, 1900, offered the university $500,000 on condition that the alumni raised an equal amount, all to go to the graduate college. During the controversy over the site Mr. Proctor's gift was withdrawn. With the renewal of the gift the half million to be given by the alumni is said to be assured in pledges from prominent alumni.

Mrs. Russell Sage, it was announced, has given $150,000 to add to the dormitories already donated by her and to build a great memorial tower 160 feet high in the northwest part of the campus.

The renewal of the offer of Mr. Proctor was made upon terms satisfactory to not only President Woodrow Wilson, but all the members of the board of trustees.

The bequest by the late Isaac C. Wyman, of Salem, Mass., variously estimated at from $2,000,000 to $4,000,000, it is said was the direct cause of the closing of the breach over the graduate college site which was a chief condition of the original Proctor offer.

With the possibility of the university's territorial expansion by the use of the Wyman bequest the site question became practically unimportant, and the objection to the location of the site on the golf links were waived, it is said.

It is understood that the $500,000 to be raised by the alumni is to go to the preceptorial system instead of to the graduate school, as designated in Mr. Proctor's original offer.

Dr. Woodrow Wilson made an address before the board, in which he said:

"I very heartily congratulate the board upon a combination of circumstances which gives so bright a promise of a successful and harmonious development of the university along lines which may command our common enthusiasm. I take pleasure in recommending the acceptance of gifts which have so richly endowed us not only with money, but also with the favor and support of thoughtful friends."

BOY OF 9 A SUICIDE

Hanged Himself Rather Than Go Back to School.

Newark, N. J., June 10.—The body of Charles Chadwick, nine years old, who committed suicide by hanging in the cellar of his home, 84 Seventh avenue, rather than go back to school because the principal had threatened to send him to a reformatory, lay in its little white draped coffin in the darkened parlor on the first floor.

Charles was sent home from school because his coat was torn. His sister Cora, aged twelve, went home with him. His mother told him to go back to school. Charles left the house, but returned again at 2 o'clock. He begged his mother not to send him back to school, but Mrs. Chadwick insisted. Once more Charles left the house, and that was the last seen of him until shortly after 9 o'clock in the evening his father found him hanging in the cellar dead.

"If I had only known," said Mrs. Chadwick, "how much he really feared going back to school I wouldn't have made him go. He told me that his principal had threatened to send him to a reformatory school, where he could never see me or his father again until he was twenty-one years old, but I thought it was only an excuse to stay away. Now I know that it was his fear that he would never see me again that made him want to stay at home."

A BIT OF DIPLOMACY

HOW PERIM ISLAND WAS WON

The Interesting Story That is Told by a White House on the Foreshore of the Arabian Coast at the Southern Entrance to the Red Sea.

On the foreshore of the Arabian coast in the strait of Bab-el-Mandeb, at the southern entrance to the Red sea, stands a large white house containing which the travelers to the far east may hear a curious story. In the middle of the nineteenth century, when M. de Lesseps after many difficulties had successfully floated the Suez Canal company, the governor of the British port of Aden, about 100 miles distant, was surprised one morning by the visit of a French squadron of very unusual size for that part of the orient, which, having encountered a terrific storm off Sokatra, had put in for repairs.

In the mind of the governor curiosity was at once aroused as to the destination of so large a command, a curiosity which increased as he found it impossible to extract any further information from the French admiral or his officers beyond the statement that they were upon an ordinary cruise, an explanation which the former was not the least inclined to believe.

Firm in the belief, therefore, that some political move of great importance was afoot, if not afoot, the governor, in order first of all to gain time, gave orders to go very tortoise-like on the repairs and then set to work to take the Frenchmen off their guard by giving a succession of such entertainments as both his slender means and the awful barrenness of the place would afford.

But, though at the end of two weeks the French and British officers had got upon the best of terms, the immediate destination of the French squadron remained as much of a mystery to the governor of Aden as before, and in spite of all possible delay the repairs were nearly completed.

Now, it happened that the wife of the governor possessed an Irish maid, who had been receiving attentions from one of the French petty officers—attentions which the girl did not regard seriously. It occurred to the governor that by such means something might be learned of his unexpected visitor's plans, and a private conversation between the governor's wife and her maid resulted in another between the latter and her French admirer, by which it was discovered that Perim island was the objective point.

At this information the governor opened his eyes wide indeed, for, if the Suez canal were cut through, Perim, as commanding the southern entrance to the Red sea, in the middle of the strait of Bab-el-Mandeb, would be a place of great strategic importance, over which, without doubt, it was the intention of the French admiral to hoist the tricolor.

Secretly giving orders, therefore, for a gunboat to immediately embark a detachment of soldiers and steal away in the night for Perim island, the governor then announced a farewell banquet and ball for the day but one following, a final act of courtesy with which the French admiral would willingly have dispensed, for he was anxious to sail, but which he could not well refuse on account of the use he had made of the British supplies and machinery at Aden.

So the dinner and party in due course came off, the governor being in high spirits, because in the meantime he had received the news of the occupation of Perim, which under the circumstances would surely be followed by the longed for promotion, and the French admiral was equally happy, for he hoped on the morrow to add the same important little speck of land to the dominion of his own country, thereby covering his breast with the stars and himself with maritime glory.

Next day, after an interchange of cordial farewells, the French squadron sailed away to an apparently unknown destination, until, when clear of the land, the course was laid full speed direct for Perim island.

Then what were the dismay and disappointment of the French admiral and his officers when, on coming in sight of their destination, they beheld the British flag flying and a company of soldiers drawn up to give them a proper salute. It is said the French admiral was so mortified at being thus outwitted that he first flung his cocked hat overboard and then followed it himself into the sea.

Be this as it may, as Perim was clearly already occupied by the British, the only counter move which the French could make was to take possession of a strip of the foreshore on the opposite Arabian coast, where they built the fortified white house in question, but as the place was entirely at the mercy of the guns on Perim island it was shortly abandoned, to remain to this day as a monument of a French admiral's undoing.—Exchange

Free Dyspepsia Sample

Sufferers from indigestion are waking up to the fact that peppermint lozenges, charcoal and "dyspepsia cures" are only makeshifts in the cure of so troublesome a complaint as chronic indigestion. What is required is something that will not only relieve but which will tone and train the digestive apparatus to again do its work normally, and this these simple remedies cannot do.

There is something more to the cure of indigestion than sweetening the breath, and yet a remedy that only contains digestive ingredients will not cure permanently, as the basis of indigestion is poor blood circulation, and that requires a scientific laxative. We know of no remedy that combines these requirements better than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which has been sold for a quarter of a century.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a laxative tonic, a scientific blending of natural ingredients for the cure of constipation, indigestion and similar complaints. Its ingredients will so strengthen the stomach and bowels muscles that they will again do their work naturally, and when that has been accomplished your trouble is over. Fannie Stuart, Staunton, Va., was a long-time sufferer, as was O. Tuck, Blackburn, Mo., and they both found their cure with this remedy. They became convinced that pills and tablets, salts, "dyspepsia cures," etc., were at best only temporary relief. They first accepted Dr. Caldwell's offer of a free sample bottle, which he willingly sends to anyone who forwards name and address. Later, having convinced themselves through the free sample, they bought Syrup Pepsin at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R. 521 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

Dessert Was Expensive.

A business man asked a young woman of his acquaintance to lunch in a department store lunch room. Pulling out his watch in the middle of the meal, he suddenly remembered that he had an important engagement and had only a few minutes to catch a train.

"Order what you want for dessert," he told the young woman as he handed her a ten dollar bill, "and you can give me the change when I see you this evening."

He kept his appointment, and in the evening the young woman handed him an envelope. "Here's your change," she said. He placed the letter in his pocket and didn't open it until the next morning, and as he did so $5 cents dropped out.

He is still wondering what the young woman had for dessert.—Philadelphia Times.

TAFT GIVES SNUB TO CONGRESSMAN

President Denies Audience to Francis B. Harrison.

ANGERED BY HUMILIATION

New Yorker Declares He Made Appointment For President to Receive Delegation and Had No Warning That He Would Not Be Received.

Washington, June 10.—Representative Francis Burton Harrison (Dem.), of New York, said at the capitol that he had received a rebuff at the White House from President Taft.

In company with Representatives Goldfogle, his colleague, and Kellihier, of Massachusetts, Mr. Harrison escorted a delegation of Hebrews to the White House to talk with the president about using his good offices in preventing massacres of Hebrews in Russia.

After the party had waited some time, it is said, Mr. Norton, the president's secretary, privately informed Mr. Harrison that the president declined to see him. So quietly was this done that the rest of the party had got into Mr. Norton's room before Mr. Harrison was missed.

Mr. Harrison was to have been the spokesman of the party, and Mr. Kellihier appeared much surprised when called upon by Mr. Norton to present those who had called with him.

"If I had known," said Mr. Kellihier, after reaching the capitol, "that the president declined to see Mr. Harrison, I would not have gone in myself."

No explanation of the incident was given out at the White House. Mr. Norton said that a statement on the subject probably would be made later. He refused further to discuss the affair.

Echo of Lawler Affair.

There was a general disposition to connect the affair with Mr. Harrison's resolution introduced in the house several weeks ago and later withdrawn, calling upon the attorney general for information in regard to his summary of the Glavis charges against Secretary Ballinger. The resolution asked for the correspondence of Oscar Lawler, assistant attorney general for the interior department, who, it developed in the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation, had made a draft of "memorandum" of the letter exonerating Secretary Ballinger and dismissing L. R. Glavis from the government service.

Representative Harrison was very indignant, inasmuch, he said, as he had made the appointment with President Taft ten days ago and had received no warning that he was to be publicly humiliated. He declined to comment upon the incident further than to give a short statement of what occurred.

"When I reached the White House with the delegation," said Mr. Harrison, "I informed Mr. Norton that we desired to see the president. The secretary went to the president's private office and returned with the information that the president could not see me."

"I then told Mr. Norton that I had made an appointment ten days ago for the delegation accompanying me to see the president, and Mr. Norton again conferred with the president."

"When he returned he informed me that the president would see the delegation accompanying me, but would not see me. I admit I was surprised almost beyond expression."

"I immediately left the White House."

Mr. Harrison said he knew of no reason why the president took the action he did, as their previous relations had always been pleasant. He was at a loss to account for it. When it was suggested that perhaps the president had refused to see him because of his introduction of the resolution regarding the president's letter exonerating Secretary Ballinger, he replied that he did not know whether that was the cause or not.

Mr. Harrison is serving his second term from New York. He is a wealthy lawyer and is a son of Mrs. Burton Harrison, the novelist.

GOULD OFFERS $15,000

Will Give That Sum For Best Aeroplane With Double Motors.

New York, June 10.—Inventors of flying machines as well as amateur aviators were keenly aroused by the offer of two new prizes during a dinner given by the New York Press club to Glenn H. Curtiss.

The most important prize is the sum of $15,000 offered by Edwin Gould to the inventor of the best successful aeroplane having two motors and two propellers. Some of the experts regard the prize as a testimonial to the present superiority of the Wright biplane, as that machine now has two propellers, and with the addition of an auxiliary motor it may come within the requirements of the prize offer.

The announcement of the prize was made by J. B. Walker, the editor of the Scientific American, who stated that conditions and details of the prize would later be announced.

FOUR IN FUNERAL PARTY ARE KILLED

Locomotive Runs Down Coach at Haverstraw, N. Y.

Haverstraw, N. Y., June 10.—Four persons were killed when a coach returning from a funeral was run down by a West Shore locomotive where the railroad crosses West Side avenue.

The dead are: Rev. A. Rowath, who had conducted the funeral services; Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Serferd, of New City; William Beebe, who was driving the coach.

Mrs. Perry Keesler, who was also in the coach, was seriously hurt and is not expected to live.

When the locomotive struck the coach it was running at a high rate of speed. From appearance and from witnesses it seems that the team and coach were on the tracks when the gate was let down, and this confined them with no way of escape.

The gates on the eastbound track were broken from the inside, and this indicates that the gates were down against the coach when it was hit. So great was the speed of the locomotive at the time that after the accident parts of the coach and the bodies of those killed were scattered along the track for 150 feet.

TWO RIDE AIRSHIP 105 MILES

French Aviators Fly From Chalons-Sur-Marne to Gates of Paris.

Paris, June 10.—The distance record for an aeroplane carrying two persons was broken when two officers of the French army aviation corps, named Marconnet and Feguant, flew from Chalons-Sur-Marne to the gates of Paris, a distance of 105.6 miles, in two hours and fifty minutes, without a stop.

Heretofore the passenger carrying qualities of the heavier-than-air planes have been limited to field exhibitions and have been rather rare even then. The performance of the two Frenchmen, therefore, marks a new departure in air navigation and comes a step nearer the goal for which inventors and aviators are striving, the commercial utility of the flying machine.

Wealthy Widow Murdered.

Leavenworth, Kan., June 10.—Mrs. Elizabeth Schultz, a wealthy widow, seventy-four years old, was found murdered in her residence, where she lived alone within a block of the police station here. The murderer had then set the house on fire. It is said that Mrs. Schultz was worth $50,000, and that she was known to keep a large sum in the house. A policeman, seeing the house on fire, broke down the front door and extinguished the flames. He then discovered the nude and charred body of Mrs. Schultz in the cellar.

GIRL ELOPED WITH "COUNT"

FLED TO EVADE OFFICERS

Elizabeth Rodgers, Who Left Home With Dead Mother's Jewels, Married an Italian Barber Who Posed as a Count.

Bridgeport, Conn., June 10.—Elizabeth E. Rodgers, the missing seventeen-year-old Philadelphia girl, it was learned, eloped from that city on May 31 with James Pasciano, formerly a barber in this city, believing him to be an Italian count. The police here had Pasciano under surveillance for a time for suspected connection with the white slave traffic. Pasciano and the Rodgers girl spent nearly a week of their honeymoon in this city, living in a furnished room house, where she remained in hiding, coming out only after nightfall. Warned of the approach of Philadelphia detectives, the couple fled last Monday afternoon. They came here Tuesday evening, May 31.

The Rodgers girl, according to the story of her father, Hugh Rodgers, a wealthy harness manufacturer, of 844 North Eighth street, Philadelphia, took with her jewels to the value of $3500. She left home the morning after Memorial Day to strew flowers on her mother's grave. Her failure to return and the discovery that the jewels of her dead mother had vanished led her father to fear she had been lured away to be robbed. Girl friends of the Rodgers girl told the police of her having been friendly with an Italian count. The police learned he was Pasciano.

Pasciano first arranged for the room and then brought the girl in. She hadn't even a hat on nor personal effects. She was dressed in a tan suit with tan shoes and wore an unusually large number of puffs in her back hair. Pasciano brought her meals in, and she left the room only by night. She took Mrs. Beauregard into her confidence far enough to tell her that she had eloped with Jimmy and had been married. The police fear it was a mock marriage if any ceremony was performed. They left here Monday afternoon, leaving in great haste. Elizabeth told Mrs. Beauregard they had been warned by telegrams that detectives had found clues leading them to Bridgeport.

Mrs. Beauregard saw no jewelry on Elizabeth.

FAINTED IN FAKE HOLD-UP

Seattle, Wash., June 10.—A new society diversion, a fake stage coach holdup, was introduced by Harry Whitney Treat, clubman of New York and Seattle. The result was that several well known women passengers fainted and the practical jokers found themselves in peril of jail.

Treat was the whip of a coaching party that included Mrs. Joshua Green, Mrs. Charles Willard Stinson, Mrs. Jack Ballinger, Mrs. J. D. Farrell, Mrs. Frederick S. Stinson, Mrs. George H. Snowden, a niece of President Taft; Mrs. John Eddy, Mrs. T. F. Ruhma and Mrs. Karl Hulskamp.

On the highway, at a lonely spot, Green and Eddy, with three others, all masked and with guns, held up the party and compelled the women to drop their valuables into a bag.

Those who fainted were relieved of their trinkets. The matter was reported on the arrival of the party in Seattle, and the police rounded up the "desperadoes." Then, after an explanation, they were released.

She and her husband were jointly fined $2000, on the stipulation that they are to pay in addition $8800 which the government says is the amount of their frauds.

His Fast Friends.

A teacher in a New England grammar school found the subjoined facts in a composition on Longfellow, the poet, written by a fifteen-year-old girl: "Henry W. Longfellow was born in Portland, Me., while his parents were traveling in Europe. He had many fast friends, among whom the fastest were Phoebe and Alice Carey."

He Drew the Line.

Old John was a lawyer's confidential clerk, and he had the pernicious habit of going to a neighboring saloon every morning at 11 o'clock and taking a small glass of whisky. He was not proud of this habit; hence after the whisky he always took a clove.

But one morning it happened that there were no cloves on the bar, and John, after having considered the matter, ate a small raw onion from the free lunch tray. That would destroy the telltale whisky odor, no doubt, as well as the clove had always done, and, so thinking, he returned to his desk.

It was a double desk. At it he and his employer sat face to face. John on his return was soon aware that his employer noticed something. The man's nostrils quivered, he sniffed, and finally, with a grimace of disgust, he broke out:

"Look here, John; I've stood whisky and clove for nineteen years, but I draw the line at whisky and onions!"

Of course it's hard to keep the hands from becoming rough, red and sore, when one has been doing dusting, or washing dishes that is, if you are not using MANOLINE.

If you try it, you will find how easy it is to keep one's skin in good condition with very little trouble. MANOLINE has lots of uses for the skin.

THEY MAKE YOU BELIEVE

Because They Prove All They Claim.

There is no room for doubt when so many people of good standing are anxious to tell their friends of the great good received from the use of Root Juice. At this point many have been cured, or greatly benefited, of rheumatism, catarrh, indigestion, female weakness or some liver, kidney or stomach trouble. No wonder one friend is often advising another to try Root Juice. If you bloated and belch, if food lies heavily on the stomach and pains, if what you eat does not give you strength, if you have swimming of the head, if you are nervous and your entire system is run down, if you are restless at night and feel as tired in the morning as you did when you went to bed, be governed by the experience of others and go to the drug store, get a bottle of Root Juice and take it exactly according to directions. We predict that before you have used one bottle you will be advising your sick friends to get some of this wonderful medicine, for Root Juice always proves all that is claimed for it. One dollar a bottle or three bottles for two dollars and a half at People's drug store.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.

Hens often make a terrific dust on a dirt floor and in the dust bath. Better wear a duster and have the door into feed or engine room that communicates good and tight.

It's often a poser to get a prize rooster to pose for a photograph. He is indisposed to pose. For a temper tester s'pose you try it.

Doctors are busy prescribing fresh eggs as diet for patients. The tuberculosis dispensaries are using thousands of them. The old idea that eggs breed biliousness is no more.

There was a day when a rooster cut only appeared in the papers at election time. Interest in poultry culture has so increased and poultry associations are so common that poultry cuts and poultry articles are common, and the up to date editor tries to meet the demand for this literature.

Your congressman will be glad to hear suggestions from you as to any legislation you think should be passed. He knows the importance of the poultry industry and is willing to back any good laws in its favor. The idea that you vote yes and nay, as some political boss do, say, or simply talk and draw their pay is a fake from some muck rake.

So many put off buying hatching machines until it's too late to have them delivered on time or wait to order the brooder until the chicks are almost out. Then what a knock!

Matt Barbian, a Sharon (Pa.) cop, entered a restaurant and without any cackle about it put away forty-two raw eggs and gladly paid $2.10 for the privilege. Hope he's as hard on "bad eggs" with his big stick.

The idea that a big incubator does not hatch as many and good chickens as a small one is certainly proved an error by the following report:

Dear Sir—We filled our 5,000 egg incubator and were somewhat anxious, as it was the first trial and a quantity of the eggs were shipped 300 miles. We got a big batch of the brightest, heaviest bodied and strongest legged chicks we have ever hatched, and it only required one-quarter ton of coal.

Mrs. John Worthington of Penn's Park, Pa., not only helped her husband with the farm work and did the housekeeping, but raised a flock of 125 chickens that brought her $142 for eggs and $402 for poultry the past season. Next!

An incubator firm in Buffalo, N. Y., all through the hard times kept 500 men at work, and many worked overtime. Bliddy's egg factory was also busy, and the chicken hatchery worked day and night to turn out the bright eyed ruffies.

Petaluma, Cal., has won the distinction of being the greatest poultry center in the world. Her 1,008,436 hens last year laid 100,843,556 eggs, and every day in the year $5,798 is received for poultry products. And yet some say "poultry never did and never will pay."

A conservation doctrine that needs a deal more attention given to it this year than was last is that of increasing the usefulness and wholesomeness of the myriad homes of the country—the multiplication of home comforts, the increase of home happiness and contentment, the rearing and training of purer minded and more whole souled boys and girls. Here is a conservation directly affecting our perpetuity as a nation in comparison with which the saving of forests from destruction, the keeping of soils from depletion and the prevention of the looting of our mineral wealth by the greedy sink into paltry insignificance. The fact is there is good ground for believing that if we paid more attention to our homes and boys and girls some of these other ill would right themselves, for there would of necessity be a larger moral element in our national life.

BEDEVILED MILK.

The Abiding Place of All the Imps That Harass Man.

Modern Demonology as "Exposed" by the Lecturer of the Orange County (N. Y.) Pomona Grange, Mr. J. Scott King—Dairymen Will Appreciate the Story.

The priests of the new demonology, the chemists, and the high priests, the doctors of medicine, have helped us to know that there is nothing sacred to the touch of bacteria. The holy communion cup is their abiding place. The tips of parents are bridges for their crossing over to the saintly levers and their tips with carbolated paste or have a bottle of some holy wash with them for immediate exorcism. The very beloved currency of trade is particularly bedeviled even beyond sacred warrant with bacteria, although it is a strange fact that the hierarchy of modern demonology shows little fear or reverence about handling money if it is plentiful enough, looking not askance at any faint.

It has been particularly found out that milk is a peculiarly loved abiding place of all the imps that harass man. For many centuries the lactiferous fluid of the cow stood for beneficence, for the building up of bone and good red blood. In this we now know we were mistaken and have long lived in darkness and ignorance. Satan and his legions, waiting for the morning, have been particularly fond of milk. It is a demon run worked havoc in our large cities, causing babies ill nourished to die and decimating the flower of our youth. Now we learn that milk is a greater demon. Statistics pile up to prove the awful slaughter at the hands of the Herod milk. The imps which generate typhoid, tuberculosis, diphtheria, scarlatina, and a great affinity for milk. Our barns, our farmhouses, the air on our hills, are filled with vast invisible armies of him, whose name is legion, waiting for the morning, and evening milking times. Millions and millions wiggling little devils play on the barn floor, sport in the hay, laugh at us from the crevices in the walls. Our wells are not their source from mountain forest, but from the stygian stream of hades. Our hands, even, are a dancing floor for illiterate hosts of evil spirits. If we utter a whisper and resting places of a million devils are jarred in the milk cans. Country air is an exploded delusion. The city has the pure air. That God made the country and man the city is a superstition not becoming to learned men. The only pure air we have in the country comes from the cities in the return milk cans and bottles, which, alas, we return filled with all evil things to infect the wholesome atmosphere of the towns! But a yet more interesting knowledge is dawning upon us. New York city has stumbled upon a new idea—malignant animal magnetism—as also has Boston. What the peculiar shape of this bacterial wiggler is we do not yet know. It probably is bifurcate and will receive the name of bispirillum. Not only does milk give off mystical but moral and spiritual disease. A cow with a tendency to kick over the pail must give a milk which has the bacteria of cussedness. Who drinks it gets the chills and the farmer's milk is profane at the cow's cussedness imparts to the milk a tendency to produce profanity. Here we are approaching a Scriptural fact, for did not the demons of Gadara enter into the swine, which rushed forth into the sea?

Light is a great enemy of malignant spirits. Bacteria properly find concrete floors, chills beds and resting places. If you increase the cubic space of their room they are not so likely to fall into the milk pail in their games. A garment of pure white makes them fearful as they look too much like the dress of angels. Dry hands give a better resting place because not so slippery as wet hands. You should breathe only through your nose and not talk while milking. Your mouth is an open sepulcher. Never swear at a cow nor lose your temper. Poetical feelings and dreamy lullabies should possess you at all times while near the cow. Never milk your cows if the hired man has not come back on time on holidays till after you have composed your mind by reading some Browning quotations or have had your wife play on the piano, stanza or two of some hymn like "We Shall Meet By and By." A small library of selected poems or a melodeon in the barn will merit your points on your score. The farmer and the farmer's milk are the moral curse of the large cities as well as the physical curse. The cities' evil can readily be traced to the country, the very abode of all evil. Why should we not hail with joy the new crusade now that our minds are enlightened? Instead of fighting the inspection of our bodies and souls, of our barns and our wells, of our air and haymows, let us unite in inspection. Let us stop the awful havoc we are making among the young and old of our cities with demon milk. Let us line up with priest and high priest, the new religion to prohibit the sale of milk or to put its sale under a strict license or take oath that we will milk our cattle six days a week in a hospital in nurse's gray and on the Sabbath day in a chapel apron in a monk's gown. So shall we roll back the stigma of our business and help undo the untold evils we have perpetrated in our large cities.

Why Join the Grange?
Because it is inexpensive.
Because it is the farmers' only organization national in character.
Because it has stood the test for forty-two years and has never been found wanting in any respect.
Because it has exerted greater influence in securing state and national legislation in the interest of agriculture than any agency in the country.
Because it is offered by those engaged in agriculture, who know from experience the needs of farmers and are sincere in their desire to aid them in every possible way.

A Grange Rally.
A grand rally of grangers was that of June 4, when Tompkins county grange held its regular Pomona meeting at Ithaca, N. Y. Commissioner of Agriculture Pearson is lecturer of this grange, and it goes without saying that he had a fine array of speakers.

How Uncle Billy Was Jilted

By ESTELLE MARSH

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"Uncle Billy, why is it that all your colored friends marry and you remain a bachelor?"

"Don't want to get married," replied Uncle Billy, with a grunt.

"I fancy you must have been jilted."

"I been fooled."

"If it isn't a subject too near your heart to speak of, I would like to hear about it."

"Near ma heart! Mo' likely near dat spot in ma head wha' de fernaligists say de mad is. It war dis way: Mandy war a likely gal, an' I was gittin' to dat age wha' a man gits tired o' cake-walks an' breakdowns an' all dat, an' I tink it time fo' me to settle down. I'd been po'ter on a sleeper cyar fo' nigh on to fifteen yea's, an' de tips war so big I thought I'd rudder be de po'ter dan de president. I tuk all de tips I got 'cept wha' I paid de railroad fo' de privilege ob wo'kin' fo' 'em, an' I tied it up in a red hanchieff an' put it in de chimney."

"I warn't wo'kin' fo' de railroad any mo'. I wat thinkin' 'bout goin' inter bizness. While I wat waitin' fo' somepin' to turn up I reckoned it war might' lonesome libin' all alone in ma house by myself, an' I got to thinkin' ob Mandy. Mandy she war twenty, an' I war put' nigh fifty. But I reckoned dis way: De sayin' is, 'Yo' mought as well hang fo' a sheep as a lamb,' but I 'spected in maternoney fo' de man hits 'mought as well hang fo' a lamb as a tough ole sheep.' So I tole Mandy ef she marry me she don't hab to wo'k no mo', 'cause I got 'nuff fo' bofe ob us."

"Mandy say she was willin', but I tuk notice she didn't say it lak her heart was sot on it. But ma heart was sot on it, an' I often tuk notice dat when an ole man's heart air sot on marryin' a young woman dar hain't no use to argify with him. De gal might' good to de ole man till she got him tied hand an' foot; den she pick up de poker an' knock he brains out. After dat she got all he money, an' dat war wha' she was after."

"I was bigger fool dan dat man, but I come out in de end better'n he. De Lawd saved me. Somebody tole me dat Mandy war keepin' company wid Mose Tucker when I axed her to marry me. I axed Mandy ef dat war so. Mandy say: 'Mose Tucker no 'count. I lub yo' better'n all de worl'.' Den I say to dat nigger wha' tole me dat: 'Wha' yo' say Mandy lub Mose Tucker fo'? Mandy lub me better'n all de worl'.' An' he say, 'No fool lak an ole fool.' But dat didn't count wid me no how."

"Mandy an' me war gwine ter be married on de fourt ob June, when de roses war bloomin'. De day befo' de fourt I war walkin' 'long de street when I kick a wire hangin' from a telegraph pole. It must 'a' been a live wire, kase it tuk all de life out ob me. Anyway I didn't know nuffin' till all ob a sudden I woke up in a coffin. I war lyin' in ma house, in de libin' room, wha' had been get ready fo' to bring ma bride de nex' day. De lamp war burnin' low, an' dere wan't nobody in de room."

"'Wha' dey gwine leab me all alone fo'? war de first ting I tink ob. 'Ef I'm daid I air entitled to de respect ob a regular co'pse. Ef I hain't daid wha' I doin' in a coffin? Dat's wha' I lak to know.'"

"'Jist den I hear some low talkin' in de udder room. I listen, an' I hear Mandy's voice."

"'Mose,' she said, 'I wonder wha' de ole man kep' he money?'"

"'Mebbe he put it in de bank.'"

"'Don't believe it. I tink he kep' it heab. I'm gwine to look.'"

"I keep still an' dey go huntin' 'bout in de bureau drawers, in de closet, everywhere, 'till Mose he looked in de chimney. Out he pull de hanchieff wid all ma sabens in it. He an' Mandy dey emptied all de tips I'd got fo' fifteen yea's on a table an' war lookin' at it all wid de greed in dere eyes. Den dey began to count it. While dey war countin' I sot up in de coffin. Part' soon Mandy she turn round, and she see me sittin' up lookin' right at her. She gib a shriek an' tumble down ob de floor. Den Mose he turn, an' he see me sittin', an' he backs outen de room, he eyes sot on me all de while he war backin' an' a-bulgin' out ob de head."

"I war might' glad. I jes' dived out ob dat coffin 's if I was jumpin' out ob a boat. An' I run after dat nigger, an' I catched him; an' I made he eyes a lot bigger 'n dey war befo' when he war lookin' at me sittin' up in de coffin."

"After I finished punchin' Mose I went back to find Mandy. Dere wan't no Mandy dere, an' dere wan't none ob my tips wha' I'd been fifteen yea's collectin' nudder."

"When I see Mandy ag'in she try mak' 'bitter she war might' sorry. I axed her wha' my money all gone to. She say she hain't seen no money. Den I tell her I sor her an' Mose contin' it an' I went after Mose an' gib him a-lamin' an' went back an' she an' de money war bof missin'. Mandy she cried an' said I had a bad dream when I war comin' to massel."

"I had Mandy tookin' befo' de judge an' when he heard ma accusation he said, says he: 'Yo' been puttin' up a job. Yo' better go back to heaben, wha' dey don't lay up no treasures.'"

"If dat war wha' yo' call jiltin', den I reckon I war jilted might' bad."

A majority of the soothing sirups at present on the market and frequently used by tired mothers to quiet crying babies contain considerable quantities of morphine or cocaine, both of them deadly poisons, and many of the so called cures for several drug habits contain the very drugs a craving for which these cures are supposed to relieve the drug victim of. Farmers' bulletin No. 333, put out a short time ago by the department of agriculture at Washington, goes very thorough into the subject of these death dealin' lug nostrums. There should be one in every home.

TURKEY HISTORY.

Oh, the days of old, when was not heard the wail, "What is Thanksgiving without a turkey?"

Those happy days, "when the frost was on the punkin and the corn was in the shocks" and the hills and vales resounded with the gobble of the cocks!

Oh, when all those red checked milk-maids milked their mooring cows at night, those big gobblers struttin' round them made an awful pretty sight.

In those days the brazen wild turkey cocks pranced down from the woods and fought grandfather's tame gobblers to a finish, and oft the "call of the wild," sounded by the king of the woods from a towering pine, stamped the farmer's half domesticated fowls back to the wild life of the hills and the rills.

Why, in those times turkeys were so thick on the roads and the streets that rural belles, promenading in hoop-skirts and red ruffles, were often chased home by red headed turkey gobblers. But today, when only 7,500,000 turks are raised per year, there are just twelve hungry, paating, red faced citizens chasing each poor lone, shrieking, ruffle tailed turkey.

"Turkey never wore a halo for grandfather. With him it was common, cheap."

Their lips got tired snackin' over it. A fat turk, laid on the crossroads counter beside a fat ham, shriveled up in vain like a snail in a salt bar'l.

But now millions don't even know the taste of turkey.

Millions can't pay the price. Seven million five hundred thousand turks can't be stretched to tickle the pates of 90,000,000 people, even by a railroad restaurant expert.

The east, once turkdom, is now "haunted" by the ghosts of gobblers bred to death.

The redheads died of blackhead because inbred and ill fed.

But look up, thou turkey hungry soul, "Yet there is hope."

Westward the course of turkey empire takes its way. Yonder in the land of the setting sun the wild and woolly specialist with the know how is manufacturing millions of gobblers by machinery and chasing them after the myriad jack rabbit grasshoppers of the midland prairies.

They snap the early worm in the great corn belt and glean grain in those vast wheatfields that are the wonder of the world. They fatten on the rich ranges of "Show Me Land," flourish in the great alfalfa fields of the Lone Star and take their midday sleeta in the fragrant orange groves of the Golden Gate.

Oh, hear them twitter—

We are coming from the prairies, From fair western vale and hill, To make you folks more thankful And that aching void to fill. Your turkeys, grown o'er in the east, May seem real good to eat. But, oh, it's the alfalfa turk That has the whole earth beat!

Nature seems to have provided exceptional means for reducing the babyhood—the helpless period—of the birds to a minimum, thereby decreasing the likelihood of their destruction by their several natural enemies. This safeguard lies chiefly in the enormous eating capacity of the newly hatched birds, three or four nestlings keeping both parent birds busy from daylight until dark stuffing their uplifted and gaping mouths. This large consumption of food results in a like prodigious and rapid growth and development, the young birds testing their wings in flight from the nest but a few short weeks after hatching.
